VINCE & SHERYL GILL & CROW

This Won't Take Long

and the Electric Honey Badgers

This Won't Take Long was recorded during a series of sessions in legendary Muscle Shoals, Alabama, as a part of Leslie Satcher's forthcoming album. The song was written by Satcher and native Muscle Shoals hitmakers Brad Crisler and James LeBlanc both of whom honed their writing and production skills at Rick Hall's FAME studio. The single was produced by Crisler and tracked live with a small group of veteran players including LeBlanc on electric guitar, Jim "Moose" Brown on Wurlitzer and Hammond B3 organ, Tommy Harden on drums and original Muscle Shoals rhythm section bass player David Hood (whose multitude of classic hit credits includes "Son Of A Preacher Man"). The track was recorded by Grammy winning engineer Jimmy Nutt. Satcher enlisted her friends Vince Gill and Sheryl Crow to contribute vocals and the track was mixed by Nutt and mastered by Noiseblock's Chris Bethea, also in Muscle Shoals.

Based in Franklin, Tennessee, Leslie Satcher is best known as a songwriter and has the elite status of receiving multiple BMI "Million-Air" awards - recognizing a song's one millionth airplay. Additionally, her incomparable vocals contribute to an astounding number of Grammy, CMA & ACM award winning projects. While Leslie is primarily known as a country singer and songwriter, her talents cross all genres. Her songs are recorded by everyone from Willie Nelson to Ariana Grande, Vince Gill to Sheila E.; George Strait to Sheryl Crow; Martina McBride and Keb'Mo, to Merle Haggard & Gretchen Wilson.

Leslie Satcher & The Electric Honey Badgers with Vince Gill & Sheryl Crow "This Won't Take Long" is released worldwide by NHMM on 22nd September 2017.
